

Nondisclosure Statement

The information, text and other materials in the Issaries, Inc. Authors Site is the property of Issaries, Inc. and may not be used without permission.

I, the undersigned, recognize the proprietary rights to all of the content of the Issaries, Inc. Authors Site. I understand that it is private property, and that all rights to disseminate it are determined by Issaries, Inc.

I agree that I will not share this information with outsiders. I will not copy it for distribution in print or electronically. I will not discuss the enclosed information in print or in any other format, especially noting that this may not be quoted or cited as an authority in any online discussion. I understand that I may print out a copy of material to use in test play, as a personal reference, and to discuss with my play group, as long as they too understand the privacy requirements and agree not to share the information.

If I further understand that this material is, in many cases, unfinished work. If I use or reference anything in this unpublished corpus I will note it, and understand that it may be officially changed at any time in the future. I understand that the materials are provided for reference and information only, and that they will be edited, spell-checked, and otherwise professionally treated before publication. I will refrain from informing Issaries or other authors of such errors.

Authors of materials herein are under no obligation to respond to any other author's comments upon their work contained herein. Please do not presume otherwise. All of the authors have been instructed the same way: The time to talk is done. Make a decision, check with us, and then write it. Don't expect that they will chat with you about it. Tell them how brilliant it is after it's done. Let them get the work done now.
